4. Territorial Administrative Structure of the Ministry

The two basic territorial administrative units responsible for fleet operation and river route maintenance are the river basin route administrations and ship lines. The basin route administrations are under both Glavvodput' (Main Administration of Inland Waterways) (13) and the main territorial-operational administrations and are responsible for the maintenance of river routes. (11) Each of them maintains one or several of the major river routes (36), and derives its name from them. Within the organization of the basin route administrations are maintenance sections responsible for river sections which are usually less than 500 kilometers long. (37)

Ship lines are territorial-operational administrations which control passenger and freight fleets. (7) They are subordinate to main territorial-operational administrations. (38)
